

The Big Mix

Clicking here can open / close background music effects.

You can drag the potions and items, each representing a week's progress, into the cauldron. When all 10 of them are dropped, a philosopher's stone (plan for final project) appears.

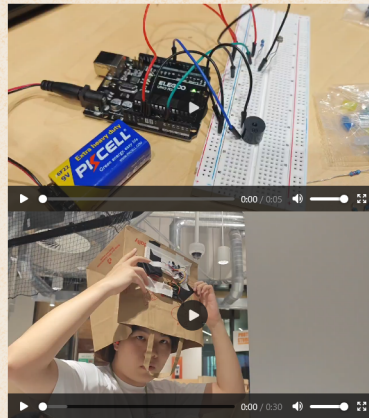

There should be sound effects when you drop them in.

Clicking each potion will bring you to a separate page showing this week's progress.

The Big Mix

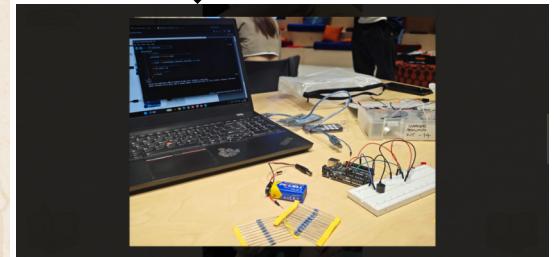

Recipe of Week 7

Class activity: built an obstruction detector

Click images and videos (might not work on all browsers for video) bring you to lightbox view, click again to quit.

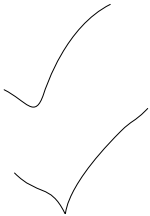

Click the page flipping button to go to the next page or the previous page.

WWWORKBOOK A feedback

Hi Han,

this is a great start to your Interactive Media workbook, you have used a good metaphor to imagine the 'ingredients' of your learning and how the user can navigate.

You have some great references here and you articulate their interest for you well. You can pehaps check the spelling on your entries here, (begining --> beginning etc)

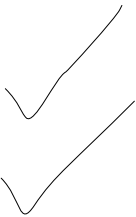

Your images are nice, next you can add animated gif images or short videos too?

As you move forward, and develop this site further (mostly independently, although please ask questions wherever you need to) there are a few things you can think of that would improve the workbook.

The 'draggable' message (note spelling!) maybe could be 'turned off' once the elements have been clicked dragged, or just after a period of time, as it detracts from your design removed

you could offer a way to 'zoom in on your images' (see the lightbox example on our cheatsheets)

on your scroll in the corner of each week, it would be a nice feature to be able to jump directly to another week, or to home

The choice of font and background colour could really be improved to make it more 'in line' with teh potions/magic feel? pehaps you might be after a 'parchment or paper background effect (the brown seems too dark?

this is a great start though, considering where you started from, keep going!

karena ann & andy